CONFEDERATE CHRONICLES
Selma was one of the major munitions manufacturers for the Confederacy in the Civil War, making it a prime Union target and the location of some serious battles.

STREET SCENES
All along Historic Water Avenue, you’ll find sites of significance to both the Civil War and the Civil Rights Movement, including the famous Edmund Pettus Bridge and the beginning of the Selma to Montgomery Trail, the Songs of Selma Park and the Bridge Tender’s House.

BIGGER & BETTER
Take the “Windshield Tour” through Selma’s Old Town Historic District and view over 1,250 designated historic structures in the state’s largest contiguous Historic District.

HOLY GROUND
Some of the loveliest examples of Selma’s architectural variety and skill can be observed in the many old churches scattered throughout the city, most still in use today. Take a self-guided tour. And find glory, humor and tenderness in the stories told by gravestones at Old Live Oak Cemetery.

CIVIL RIGHTS STORIES
A century after the Civil War, Selma made history again as the site of some of the most infamous events in the Civil Rights Movement including “Bloody Sunday” and the successful Selma-to-Montgomery March, led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

HAUNTS & HAINTS
With more than a century of history predating the Civil War, Selma has more than its fair share of historic sites that are also haunted. View 13 Dallas County sites on the Alabama Ghost Trail and take the self-guided Ghost Tour. Visit in late October, and participate in the Haunted History Tour weekend featuring Selma and Old Cahawba. But don’t get too frightened. While their tales may send a shiver up your spine, Selma’s “ghosts” are all friendly.

OUTDOOR ADVENTURES
Sitting on the banks of the Alabama River and surrounded by forests and fields teeming with wildlife, Selma offers an abundance of outdoor activities, including hunting and fishing opportunities to fulfill any sportsman’s dreams. Try your luck at the Dallas County State Public Fishing Lake, a 100-acre gem offering excellent fishing year round.

FARM FRESHNESS
Get it while it’s good! Delicious, healthy, homegrown fruits and veggies are for sale every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from early May until the end of December at the Farmer’s Market at Bloch Park.

SOARING ARTISTRY
Selma was declared the Butterfly Capital of Alabama in 1982, and the many five foot butterflies all around town honor this fact. The butterflies were decorated by over 40 local artists, and each different winged work of art reflects the artist’s and sponsors’ individual imaginations.

Selma and Dallas County Find It Local Guide 2020
The Battle of Selma

The Civil War started in the spring of 1861 and lasted 4 years until the spring of 1865. When Abraham Lincoln was elected President of the United States in 1860, 11 southern states seceded from the Union and declared themselves the Confederate States of America (CSA). The Civil War had begun and battles raged at multiple sites. In early 1865, Union Military authorities turned their eyes toward Selma as it was home to a bustling military industrial complex. As a major munitions manufacturer for the Confederacy, Selma played a prominent role in the conflict’s most contested struggles; evidence of that role can still be seen and felt today at several of Selma’s historic sites.

In 1865, the resources supporting the Confederacy were wearing thin and the Naval Ordnance Works, Army Arsenal, and Selma’s Navy Shipyard were the South’s last chance for continued resistance. The beginning of 1865 saw the siege of Richmond tighten and the launch of Union General James H. Wilson’s Raid to destroy the production facilities in Selma, Alabama. His only obstacle would be the son of a poverty-stricken backwoods blacksmith, Confederate General Nathan Bedford Forrest, who had never lost a battle. The Confederacy’s shortage of men and supplies, however, had taken a frightening toll on Forrest’s command. While setting up a defensive position in his front, Forrest sent his veteran troops to attack the rear of Wilson’s column. Wilson, however, intercepted a dispatch containing Forrest’s plans and used the information to isolate and delay the raiding party.

On April 1, Wilson attacked and overran Forrest’s inexperienced troops in the Battle of Ebenezer Church. Forrest fell back 18 miles to Selma, where he put his few hundred cavalry veterans and 3,000 untried militiamen, spread thinly in the 3.5 miles of earthworks surrounding the city. Then on the evening of April 2, Wilson succeeded in his mission, destroying the arsenals and much of Selma in his siege.

Selma’s Old Live Oak Cemetery, listed on the National Register of Historic Places, is the final resting place for many Civil War soldiers and the Confederate Memorial. Other prominent Selmians are interred in this beautiful, historic cemetery including William Rufus King, John Tyler Morgan, Benjamin Sterling Turner, Edmund Winston Pettus, and many more.

Today, 150 years later, you can watch this historic event literally come alive as hundreds of dedicated Civil War re-enactors re-create the sights and sounds of the Civil War and every tragic turn of the Battle of Selma. Be sure to visit some of the historic sites that survived Wilson’s Raid and the museums that pay homage to this moment in our nation’s history.

The Civil Rights Movement is sometimes called The Civil Rights Struggle for a very good reason. After decades of oppression, it took years of peaceful protest in the face of violent opposition to finally achieve voting rights for African Americans. Much of the struggle took place in and around Selma, including one of its seminal moments, the Selma to Montgomery March.

In 1965, hundreds of voting rights advocates, both black and white, set off on foot to Montgomery to the Capitol Building to take their grievances right to Governor George Wallace’s doorstep. Smaller protest marches had been held in the months prior, and on February 18 in nearby Marion, police shot 26-year-old Jimmie Lee Jackson who was protecting his mother and grandfather from assault. His senseless death motivated the Selma to Montgomery March.

On March 7, Reverend Hosea Williams and John Lewis stepped from the pulpit of Brown Chapel Church and led a group of 600 toward Montgomery. After just six blocks, when they crossed the now infamous Edmund Pettus Bridge over the Alabama River, Sheriff Jim Clark’s deputies and state troopers dispatched by Gov. Wallace attacked the group with nightsticks and tear gas, injuring dozens. The scene was caught on film and broadcast on television networks across America. National leaders and the rest of the country saw firsthand how intense the struggle had become. The event came to be known as “Bloody Sunday.”

The violence stopped the marchers’ first attempt, but they would not be silenced or stopped for good. Two weeks later, under the protection of Alabama National Guardsmen and Army troops, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. set off again from Selma and marched along U.S. Hwy. 80 to the capital city. They walked during the day and slept in the fields at night, covering the 54 miles between Selma and Montgomery in four days and gathering without incident in front of the State Capitol. By that time the crowd was 25,000 strong.

The murder of Viola Liuzzo, a 39-year-old mother of five from Detroit who was shot while shuttling marchers back to Selma, finally spurred President Lyndon Johnson to push the Voting Rights Bill through Congress. After Johnson signed the 1965 Voting Rights Act on August 6, some 7,000 African Americans registered to vote in Dallas County and defeated the segregationist sheriff who had led the “Bloody Sunday” attack.

The ultimate success of the Civil Rights Movement came on the backs of regular citizens fighting the powers that be and is resounding proof of what ordinary people can do when fighting a righteous cause.
Walk in the footsteps of the brave men and women who fought for equal rights and experience the emotion and courage of the Civil Rights Movement by visiting these historic sites in Selma.

SELMA TO MONTGOMERY NATIONAL HISTORIC TRAIL:

SELMA INTERPRETIVE CENTER
2 Broad St. (334) 872-0509
The National Historic Trail begins at Brown Chapel AME Church and ends some 54 miles to the east at the State Capitol in Montgomery. A bust of Dr. King is in front of the church.

VOTING RIGHTS TRAIL INTERPRETIVE CENTER
The National Park Service center at the midpoint of the trail displays photographs and memorabilia. Located on U.S. 80, between mile markers 105 and 106 in White Hall in Lowndes County.

EDMUND PETTUS BRIDGE
The Edmund Pettus Bridge is where “a sea of blue” law enforcement officers attacked marchers with tear gas and nightsticks on “Bloody Sunday,” March 7, 1965. Visitors can walk across one of the most recognized symbols of the Civil Rights Movement. USA Weekend includes the bridge, along with Ellis Island, Jamestown and the Lincoln Memorial, among the “ten historic landmarks that bear proud witness to our nation’s enduring freedoms.” The bridge was declared a National Historic Landmark in 2013.

NATIONAL VOTING RIGHTS MUSEUM & INSTITUTE

This museum showcases items and participants' stories related to the voting rights movement. Guides share their personal recollections of events.

TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH
1431 Broad St.
When civil rights activists from the Southern Christian Leadership Conference were trying to find a church to host Selma’s first mass meeting, Rev. Louis L. Anderson offered Tabernacle as the place. This gesture enabled Tabernacle to play a significant role in the struggle for racial equality in Selma. Other churches followed its example and the Movement became a reality in Selma.

JACKSON HOME AND MUSEUM
1416 Lapsley Ave., (404) 792-0666
The Jackson Home became the official residence for social and human rights leaders including Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Ambassador Andrew J. Young, Dr. Ralph Bunche and others in the planning of The Selma to Montgomery March. The home is listed on The Alabama Historical Register and The National Register of Historic Places.

When traveling north of Selma, people will notice a small community with open land, hills with trees, and many houses scattered along the way. There is a volunteer fire department, beautiful churches, and various businesses. When most people hear of Valley Grande, many are not familiar with its name.

In 1821, Valley Grande was known to be an area given to Dr. George Phillips by the Federal government. Phillips had built a three-storied home that was called Grand View. During the Civil War, this spectacular home was burned to the ground by Wilson’s Raiders. However, once people moved to the area throughout the years, it was soon called Valley Grande. This community includes “Summerfield,” who was named after a Methodist preacher, John Summerfield, and Ocmulgee. As of 2017, the population of Valley Grande has 3,713 residents.

These residents support their businesses and love the people in the area. Valley Grande is popular for several different reasons. People visit the community on a daily basis for the great food at restaurants like R & B Barbecue or Valley Grande Mexican Restaurant. Dave’s Market is a popular grocery store. In addition, the area has its fan food and convenience, it also has fun and relaxation. With all the open space in Valley Grande, there are places to play golf, go on a picnic, play baseball, or go to the pool. The Valley Grande Golf Course has a beautiful green and after playing on the course, there is comfort food available at Tin Cup. Even if you are not a big golfer, take a day to exercise at the Valley Grande City Park. The park has a nice and peaceful walking area with a playground in the center. Also, the park has an area for families to bring picnic lunches and throw parties or reunions at the site. Summers in Valley Grande are normally busy and fun for this community. If people are not attending Valley Grande City Park, kids and families will be next door at the Valley Grande Sports Complex, or down the road at the Valley Grande Pool.

The community has a tight bond with each other and helping one another. They support businesses and believe there is no place like home.
COMMUNITY MEANS very different things all over the world, but in Orrville, Alabama community means appreciating your neighbor and celebrating rural heritage. With around 200 residents, Orrville holds the distinction of being the smallest incorporated municipality in the State of Alabama, but make no mistake, this tiny rural enclave has much to offer.

Orrville was founded by a man on a mission; James Franklin Orr. In 1842, he began to purchase adjacent plots of land for the development of a flourishing industrial town. At the center of this town, Orr appointed a town square complete with a deep well and watering trough for weary travelers and their animals.

Today, Orrville is a quaint, rural community that boasts gorgeous homes in Greek Revival, Federal, Victorian, Queen Anne, and Craftsman architectural styles, including one of the finest examples of rural Queen Anne architecture in America. Additionally, Orrville plays host to the West Dallas Antique Tractor Show each November. This event draws thousands to marvel at the machinery and lifestyle of a bygone era and to visit one of the hundreds of vendors selling a little bit of everything.

No trip to Orrville would be complete without a stop by the Orrville Farmer’s Market. Opened in Fall of 2016, this precious store features all the modern amenities in a truly authentic atmosphere, complete with a wide variety of antiques and rural artifacts. Not only do they have some of the freshest local produce and hand-made goods around, but you can also find the perfect gift for any occasion or even get yourself a hot lunch!
A. CITY HALL
The City Hall was completed in 1976 on the former site of the old Hotel Albert. It was designed to reflect the historical architecture of downtown Selma.

B. COUNTY COURTHOUSE
The Dallas County Courthouse was originally a Neo-Classic building built in 1910. In 1965, protesters from Brown Chapel AME Church marched down Alabama Avenue to the Dallas County Courthouse in an effort to register to vote.

C. VAUGHAN-SMITHERMAN MUSEUM
The Vaughan-Smitherman Museum was originally constructed by the Masonic Order to house a school; later it was used as a Confederate hospital, courthouse and regional hospital. It was the first African-American hospital in Selma. Now a museum, it houses a medical museum, WWI and WWII uniforms along with Confederate papers including a pardon issued by President Abraham Lincoln four days before his assassination.

D. ARTSREVIVE
A grand old building, The Carneal Building has been at the end of Water Avenue for many years. ArtsRevive purchased the building in 2008 and started renovations. The building now offers office space, areas for art shows, art workshops and other community needs.

E. WATER AVENUE
Historic Water Avenue is the historical riverfront street of Selma. The Selma Times-Journal, the local newspaper, is housed in an Italianate Victorian storefront building typical of the early 1870s. This newspaper has been published continually since 1828.

F. EDMUND PETTUS BRIDGE
The Edmund Winston Pettus Bridge was erected in 1939 and was named after the U.S. Senator Edmund Winston Pettus. This is also the scene of the Selma-to-Montgomery March in 1965. The demonstrations that occurred here led to the U.S. Voting Rights Act of 1965.

G. SELMA INTERPRETIVE CENTER
The Selma Interpretive Center serves as the Welcome Center for the Selma to Montgomery National Historic Trail, which was established by Congress in 1996 to commemorate the events, people and route of the 1965 Voting Rights March. The Center is owned by the City of Selma and is operated by the National Park Service.

H. OLD DEPOT MUSEUM
The Old Depot Museum is an 1891 red brick building that was once known as the L&N Railroad Station. It now houses an impressive collection of historic treasures gathered from the days of the pre-historic Indians who lived in the region, to the time before and after the Civil War and up through America’s early days of the Civil Rights Movement.

I. BROWN CHAPEL A.M.E.
Brown Chapel AME Church, with its imposing twin towers and Romanesque Revival styling, was built in 1908 by a black builder—of whom little is known—Mr. A.J. Farley. Both the building and the members of Brown Chapel AME Church played pivotal roles in the Selma marches that helped lead to the passage of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

J. FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
First Baptist Church, constructed in 1894 in the Gothic Revival style by a local black architect, Dave Benjamin West. It is considered one of the most architecturally significant late-19th-century black churches in the state. It played a pivotal role in the Selma marches that helped lead to the passage of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

K. STURDIVANT HALL MUSEUM
Sturdivant Hall, also known as the Watts-Parkman-Gillman Home, is a historic Greek Revival antebellum mansion. Completed in 1856, it was designed by Thomas Helm Lee for Colonel Edward T. Watts. It was added to the National Register of Historic Places on January 18, 1973, due to its architectural significance.

L. LIVE OAK CEMETERY
Live Oak Cemetery was purchased by the Township of Selma in 1829 and named West Selma Graveyard. The newer section of the cemetery grounds was purchased in 1877 and combined with the older section to form Live Oak Cemetery.

TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH
1431 Broad St.
Civil Rights activists from the Southern Christian Leadership Conference held one of the first mass meetings at Tabernacle Baptist Church. This enabled the church to play a significant role in the struggle for racial equality in Selma and it is now a National Historic Landmark.

TIN MAN STUDIO
9 Lauderdale St. (334) 327-1373
Known for his knack at recycling metal and other materials into 3-D works, Charlie Lucas turned a hobby into a profession following a back injury in 1984. As he recovered, Lucas prayed that God would give him a talent he could use to support his family. Soon, his life was “recycled” into “junk-man genius.” Now, almost three decades later, the Tin Man’s art has been seen from Selma to Montgomery, from New York to France, and numerous other places between. He has lectured at Yale and painted in Paris. His story and works also appear in more than 40 books. Please call ahead to schedule a tour.

Sturdivant Hall
Located on Mabry Street, this beautiful architecture was designed by Thomas Helm Lee in 1853. It was converted into a museum where many tourist and citizens of the community still visit today.
Hunting is a passion for many of our residents and visitors. Our commercial hunting lodges offer hunters the opportunity to harvest prime buck, quail, and other small game.

Dallas County and its five adjoining counties are known throughout the country as the “White-tail Deer Capital of the Nation” for having more whitetail deer per acre than any other region of Alabama, which has more deer per acre than any state in the union.

The Alabama River provides unlimited fishing, boating, and water sports from city or privately operated marinas. Bass, crappie, catfish, and bream are abundant in Alabama’s streams and lakes, including the Paul M. Grist State Park and Dallas County Lake.

You will also find golf courses, baseball diamonds, softball diamonds, a new softball/baseball complex, hard surfaced tennis courts, a skate park, and organized leagues in baseball, football, soccer, softball, and ladies’ and men’s tennis leagues.

DALLAS COUNTY

Dallas County was carved out of the Alabama Territory in 1818 and was named after Alexander J. Dallas, a Scottish immigrant lawyer.

In the heart of the fertile agricultural region known as the Black Belt (for its black prairie soil), Dallas County is among one of the largest counties in Alabama with a land area of 981 square miles. Cutting through the middle of the county is the Alabama River, which intersects with the Cahaba River on the west side of the county. Since river and rail transportation were so important during early history, the county grew rather rapidly with both modes of transportation available.

Not long after Dallas County was formed, the state’s first permanent capital was established at Cahawba, which also served as the county seat for Dallas County. Later when the capital was moved to Tuscaloosa, the county courthouse was moved to Selma.

Dallas County was known for many years as one of the most politically powerful counties in the state and at one time both U.S. Senators were from Selma. Legislators from the county dominated decisions in the legislature for many years.

SELMA

Selma became the dominate city in the area and is the largest of only three incorporated cities in the county. Selma came into existence in 1820, just two years after Dallas County, and was founded by William Rufus King who would later become U.S. Vice President. The name “Selma” came from one of King’s favorite Ossian poems, The Songs of Selma. Selma means “high seat” or “throne,” which is fitting since Selma became the seat of Dallas County in 1866.

The city’s early beginning means that Selma is the second oldest surviving city in Alabama and home to the state’s largest historic district, with many historic structures dating back to the 1800s. Thousands of tourists come to the city and county each year, many to trace their ancestors and to attend re-enactments of two major events that pushed Selma into national and international spotlight - the Civil War in the 1860s and the Civil Rights Movement in the 1960s.

Today, Selma is a combination of history and opportunity. The area’s rich history and renowned architecture draw thousands annually, some looking for lost relatives, some looking for ghosts of the past, and others just to marvel at its beauty.

ORRVILLE

Orrville was founded in 1842 by James Franklin Orr. Orr decided to settle in Dallas County on the level, lush land in this section of the Black Belt because he believed it was suitable for his plans for the development of his varied interests. His dreams of establishing a flourishing industrial town began to develop when he purchased 88 acres of land in 1842. By 1855, Orr had purchased over 900 acres and established a public square in the center of his town with all streets leading to the square.

Orr began to broaden his business interests and established a unique combination of enterprises, which housed a gin factory, a saw factory, a cotton gin, a planning mill, a flour mill, a grist mill, and two blacksmith shops. He also experimented with growing crops and a vineyard with a wine press. Orr invented a number of things including an air rifle and an off-set screw driver; however, his pride and joy was the gin and its patents. During the Civil War, the factory was destroyed, along with most of Orr’s property. In 1911, the old Orr home burned to the ground and lovely family heirlooms were lost forever.

Today, Orrville is home to approximately 200 people and the West Dallas Antique Tractor Show, which attracts thousands of visitors to the small town.
At Vaughan Regional Medical Center, LLC, our goal is to deliver the best healthcare available in the Western Group region as we seek to make our community healthier.

With the help of dedicated physicians, employees, volunteers and board members, along with your continued support and encouragement, the hospital continues its passionate pursuit of excellence.

Delivering quality healthcare close to home is the single most important contribution it makes; however, there are many other ways we make a positive impact on our community.

Among the services offered through Vaughan Regional Medical Center, LLC are cancer care, cardiac care, CT scanning, education services, and health programs for senior adults and women, intensive care units, laparoscopic and laser surgery, maternity unit/birthing suites, accredited mammography, 24-hour physician staffed emergency room services, fitness center and ultra sound.

Numerous other specialized healthcare services are located throughout our community, including Assisted Living, Chiropractors, Dentists, Health Clubs, Home Health Care, Mental Health Services, Optometrists, Physical Therapy, Podiatrists, Physicians and Surgeons, and Weight Loss Clinics.

For more information on local healthcare, contact the Selma and Dallas County Chamber of Commerce at (334) 875-7241 or info@selmaalabama.com.

Selma and Dallas County Find It Local Guide 2020
LICENSES & REGISTRATION

DRIVER’S LICENSES
New residents must obtain an Alabama State Driver’s license within 30 days of establishing residency. Licenses are obtainable at the Selma Driver’s License Office, 102 Church St.. For testing hours and current fees, call (334) 875-1341.

VEHICLE REGISTRATION
New residents are required to register autos, motorcycles, trucks, trailers, and motor homes within 30 days of establishing residency. You will need an Alabama title and proof of insurance before you can register your vehicle. The Selma Driver’s License Office, 102 Church St., registers vehicles. Call (334) 875-1341 for current fees and further information about documentation requirements.

BOAT REGISTRATION
You must register a new boat within 72 hours, or register a currently registered used boat within 15 days. Fees are based on the length of your boat. Call the License Commissioner at the Dallas County Courthouse at (334) 874-2517 for additional information.

MARRIAGE LICENSES
Couples must be present to apply for a marriage license and must provide a valid ID and proof of social security number. Marriage licenses are issued at the Dallas County Courthouse Monday through Friday between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Call the Dallas County Courthouse at (334) 874-2516 to get further information about age and documentation requirements or visit www.dallascounty-al.org.

HUNTING & FISHING LICENSES
Any Alabama resident between the ages of 16 and 64 must obtain a hunting/fishing license to hunt or fish on public or private land or water ways. All Alabama residents age 65 or older are not required to purchase hunting or fishing licenses as long as they have proper identification to prove their age. Licenses can be purchased by phone at (888) 848-6887 or online. Visit www.outdooralabama.com for detailed information about outdoor recreation licenses.

VOTER REGISTRATION
You may register to vote at the Dallas County Courthouse, 105 Lauderdale St.. Call the Board of Registrars at (334) 874-2534 for detailed information.

Membership Benefits

Profits: Investment in the Chamber of Commerce returns a big dividend directly to you – membership services, community programs, exposure to new markets and fellow business people.

Publicity: As a part of the big picture, member volunteers share in the publicity of getting things done in our area.

Programs: Quality of life in our community is of primary importance. Whatever the scope of involvement or type of activity, remember – “Things don’t just happen.” Progress is made through the efforts of many people working together through and avenue known as – Chamber of Commerce.

Participation: We realize the limits of your time, especially in an era of uncertain markets and budget controls. But only through volunteer involvement does the Chamber represent the voice of the business and professional community and conveys its message loud and clear.

Prestige: As a member of the Chamber team of community leaders, you hold the key to making things happen. Your ideas, input and actions are translated into results. You ARE the Chamber – working to make ours a better place to live and to work.

Protection: Now, more than ever before, your views must be made known to our elected officials. Through our education programs, news releases and speakers bureau, we express your views about issues and the good things about the free market system.

WHY THE CHAMBER?

Connect
Your local Chamber not only connects you to resources that will help you and your organization thrive in our community, but we are also the primary source for local professional networking. Through individual referrals, Chamber networking events, and our involvement in organizations all over town, we can get you connected and engaged today.

Inform
We ensure our members stay informed of the constantly changing landscape. From changes in rules that govern your organization to local and national trends that are emerging, the Chamber is informing you of what’s now and what’s next.

Advocate
Every day, your local Chamber is advocating on behalf of small businesses and on behalf of our community at-large. Whether it is at the local, state, or federal level, let the Chamber be your voice by joining our membership team today.

Develop
The Chamber is always working to develop our community both culturally and economically. We are implementing best practices which pave the way for area retail to prosper. We are constantly consulting with local entrepreneurs and small business owners to link them with strategic solutions. Become a member today and let us help you get your next idea off the ground.

Promote
The Chamber is Selma and Dallas County’s primary marketing entity. We assist tourists and visitors from all over America and beyond. Additionally, we provide a wealth of information (upon request) to interested parties around the world.

You Can Help!
These five words guide not only planning for the Chamber, but everything we do. Help us spread this message throughout the community, and make sure that when you discuss the Chamber, you use these buzzwords as much as possible. You play a major part in our marketing strategy as key communicators of who we are and what we do. Let these words help you tell the story of the Chamber.

International Paper is one of the world’s leading producers of fiber-based packaging, pulp and paper. We transform renewable resources into recyclable products that people depend on every day.

Who We Are
We are a global team committed to strengthening our people and the communities where we live and work, performing safely, and using all resources responsibly.

What We Do
We create packaging products that enable world-wide commerce; pulp for diapers, tissue and other personal hygiene products; papers that facilitate education and communication; and paper bags, cups and food containers for away-from-home meals.

How We Do It
We do the right things, in the right ways, for the right reasons, all the time—this is the IP Way; from our relationships with our employees and communities, to our impact on our planet, while ensuring our businesses are successful and sustainable for generations to come.
